SEPTEMBER 2021 - N° 9

PĀNUI

Newsletter for the Northern Coromandel

We have moved into Alert Level 3, along with everywhere in Aotearoa NZ south of Auckland.

Colville at Alert Level 3

We have been incredibly fortunate to have had no cases of Covid-19 on the Coromandel this time! Thank you to all that everyone in our community has done to keep each other safe during this time and the care that people have shown to each other.

This has highlighted how quickly the virus can spread and the importance of keeping track of where we go. As we open up a little more at Alert Level 3, we are asked to:

- ▶ Work from home if we can,
- ▶ Keep our bubble as small as possible (if needed it can be expanded to bring in close family, isolated people or caregivers),
- ▶ Wear a face cover when visiting a business that is open, healthcare facilities, government agencies and social service providers,

▶ If you have cold, flu or Covid symptoms, call a health provider (this can be the 0800 358 5453).

At this time we can only go into Auckland if the purpose of travel meets the limited specified criteria (such as returning to live in Auckland).

For more information on these, and everything related to Covid, please refer to the government website <https://covid19.govt.nz>

Please feel free to phone or email us at CSSC if you want help and advice at this time.

Editor

It's been a wake-up call seeing Covid coming so close to our community. A reminder of how it's like all around the world and how quickly things can change.

Take care,

Marine

CSSC is closed at Alert L3.
We will reopen at Alert L2 - and look forward to welcoming people in then.

A big thank you

To Joanna Pearsall & Bryan Innes for the generous donation of a hand scythe from 'The Garden Tool' Store. It is whacko at clearing back the kikuyu around our CSSC house so we can plant some flowers. Any plants warmly received!

What have you been up to?

We would love to hear about your lockdown experience.

If you feel like sharing, please send us a few lines AND, especially, a picture to illustrate your words and describe your lockdown experience. It could be a personal project you've been working on, a moment shared within your bubble, the last book you read... whatever's been the highlight of those past few weeks!

We will publish one of the pictures received in the October edition of the Pānui. Remember to send your contribution before the 21st of September!

"Create things to look forward to"

"One of the important things you need to do right now if you're in lockdown is to plan something, when you go to bed at night, think to yourself, 'What am I looking forward to most tomorrow?'"

It could be a call with a friend, an hour to read your favourite book, a walk with your kids; whatever gives you a sense of anticipation. Optimism is a big part of being happy.

Hugh van Cuylenburg, The Resilience Project

Parents and whānau of youth in our community

As part of my role as Youth Development Coordinator at CSSC, I have been talking to young people about what they would like to see happening for youth in the area. I'm also interested in hearing what parents/caregivers, and other community members in Northern Coromandel, see as the needs of young people growing up in this area, particularly focusing on teenagers and young adults in the 12-26 years old age group.

What would you like to see being offered to young people in this area? What needs do you see in young people that we, as a community, can help to meet? Do you have any skills or time you would like to offer voluntarily to be part of supporting young people or in helping create new initiatives for and with young people?

I would love to hear from you.

Please email me at colvilleyouthcdw@gmail.com or phone 0210634828.

Nga Mihi,
Maria Dove

TREE PLANTING THIS SEASON

You might have seen the truck buzzing around town full of trees. It's been a quieter season this year, but we've planted 4000 native plants in Papa Aroha. That brings our grand total to 35,000 trees planted in four years. The nursery has done a great trade selling out all 15,000 trees this year. They have mostly been sold locally. Thank you for your continued support.

Beth

Next potting parties

Join us at the nursery for the famously good time filling pots, listening to good beats and eating yummy food with your friends!

Moehau ki te Moana Project : fresh water restoration

Kia ora koutou!

We wanted to introduce ourselves and announce that the freshwater restoration initiative Moehau ki te Moana is underway and off to a wonderful start!

This exciting project, which is funded by the Ministry for Environment, focusses on the protection and revitalisation of the precious waterways of the Moehau and Colville regions.

*Our project coordinators,
Cassidy Connor & Vanessa Edelsten*

Moehau ki te Moana will work in partnership with landowners, and in close collaboration with iwi partners, to integrate mātauranga Māori in delivering approximately 37km of fencing, 75,000+ native plants, 120ha of pest control, a robust environmental monitoring plan and an engaging programme of community seminars. Fencing, planting and water reticulation activities have already begun on a number of farms in our area.

We will be announcing a programme of exciting seminars focussed on the benefits of freshwater improvement soon, so stay tuned!

If you would like to contact us, please don't hesitate to get in touch via csscgrants@colville.org.nz or coordinatorvanessa@colville.org.nz or phone us at CSSC on 07 8666 920.

Vanessa & Cassidy

Looking over to Mt Moehau, from Little Bay.

Hello everyone,

Isn't it amazing how quickly and unexpectedly things can change?

My main news this month is about rescheduling our AGM advertised in the last Pānui as taking place on 8 September and is now tentatively scheduled for 29 September, at 1PM in the Colville Hall, depending on where we are with Alert Levels.

Cross fingers all will be well by then. If this date must change, we will endeavour to let people know as early as possible. Keep an eye out for posters around town and for emails from the Health Trust if you are subscribed to our website (www.colvillecommunityhealthtrust.com). If you are not yet subscribed, please do so soon, as emails directly to that subscription list are the best way for us to contact you quickly!

Also rescheduling The Great Colville Re-Fashion Show.

New date to be determined when we are getting closer to Alert Level One. Again, keep an eye out for information from the sources mentioned above.

Hold onto your tickets, or email colvilletrustmanager@gmail.com or phone 078666618 and leave a message if you would prefer to have a refund.

Take care, Emily

Where were you '81?

by John McWilliam

Forty years ago this month, the country was split apart by the controversial Springbok Tour. For many, it was the most divisive event they had ever seen, pitting those who opposed politics in sport against those who opposed apartheid.

In spite of signing the Gleneagles Agreement, Prime Minister Muldoon's decision to allow the tour to go ahead, placed New Zealand on the wrong side of international opinion, while at home friends, family and communities were divided. It radicalized the nation and the scars took years to heal.

It was a matter of being at the right place at the right time; Onslow Road Auckland, September the 12th 1981, the day of the last test match. I was a young photographer at the time, eager to document what was to prove to be one of the most important moments in New Zealand history. The protestors were determined to make a last ditch effort to stop the Tour and the Police were determined that they shall not. It was all out war but I called it the "The Battle of Onslow Road".

To mark the 40th anniversary I am exhibiting the photographs I took that day. The exhibition at Hauraki House opens at 5pm on September 10th and will run through the weekend.

Come along and remember where you were in 1981, or if you weren't born then, learn a little Kiwi history.

September the 12th 1981, the day of the last test match, by John McWilliam

Weed Busting in the Papa Aroha Reserve

By Linley Rose, Annette Steele & Carol Sutherland

Mid-July on a clear Sunday morning 12 local supporters of the Papa Aroha Reserve gathered all tooled up for a power 2h of weed control to rid the reserve of the non-native interlopers. Many phoenix palms and willows were felled. Pampas, mexican devil weed, loquat, montbretia, agapanthus and ivy were removed. A very large trailer was filled to overflow in no time.

Of course there's never a working bee without a cuppa, scones and cake. Another 2h were spent enjoying convivial conversation, and the delicious spread provided by a supportive Weed Buster. This was a great example of how many hands make light work and how quickly we can make a significant difference to improve our local environments. A big public shout out to all of those involved.

Thank you!

THE COLVILLE ART SHOW

Conservation Report : Upper Coromandel Landcare Association

UCLA members trap and hunt thousands of acres of land around Moehau. We live here, we hunt kai here, we grow healthy food here. We do not support the use of residual poisons in our wilderness.

Regarding this month's scheduled Moehau poison drop, the balance of nature will be disrupted: rats and mice decline suddenly so stoats turn to eggs and chicks. Sweetapple and Nugent (NZ Journal of Ecology 2007) showed "mean ship rat abundance indices increased nearly five-fold after possum control..."

Kiwi survival statistics in 2006, on the Moehau Kiwi Sanctuary showed sub-adult averages of 95% per year since 2000, all without aerial 1080. "A simple recipe of predator trapping backed by kiwi chick survival monitoring and hard work on the hill, has produced this exceptional result.", according to

DOC's own John Gaukrodger who announced in 2007 "600 kiwi on the mountain."

Red Admiral Ecology 2010 survey report for DOC states "the population modeling suggest that if all dog related predation of kiwi was eliminated there would now be almost no need for stoat control to maintain a stable population of kiwi."

A $13.40 per ha. subsidy for trappers is all it would take according to Chris Jones in Kararehe Kino Vertebrate Pest Research. "Aerial control does not deliver any socio-economic benefits to local communities, whereas a harvest industry could provide secure long-term employment where it is most needed and support local communities' kaitiakitanga of their forest environment."

Measuring our Mahi

After the distribution of 1000 new rat traps last month in the extended MEGa Rat Attack area near Port Charles, we are almost ready to start trapping.

The final step before we can begin the extended trapping programme is the set-up of vegetation plots to monitor the difference our mahi makes. Our team has started counting seedlings in plots at control sites (outside the trapped area) and those within the MEGa Rat Attack zone as a baseline. We are measuring forest regeneration and we expect that the area where we remove rats will have more seedling recruitment than the untrapped area. The plots will be monitored by our hard working field team.

Remember you can stop at the kiwi platform on the way to Port Charles and look out over the new MEGa Rat Attack area – now with 430ha under rodent control. Once again a huge thanks to our field team and our volunteers for all their mahi.

Ferrets – A new menace!

In conjunction with DOC we are about to begin a programme targeting ferrets after two were caught earlier in the year in the Waikawau Bay area. Ferrets are the largest mustelid species in New Zealand and have not traditionally been an issue for our area, however, they do pose a risk to our native species, so we are moving quickly to deal with the issue.

Starting in the Waikawau Bay area and focussing on the farm/bush margin, we are installing 26 ferret traps interspersed with our existing stoat traps, and using better lures and fresh meat baits (a ferret favourite). We will continue the trapping and ongoing surveillance operation aided with trail cameras and assistance from DOC.

Installing ferret traps at Waikaway Bay

Winter Lecture Series

On Sunday September 5th, we are wrapping up our successful Winter Lecture series with a final session presented by Professor Bruce Clarkson on “Bringing Indigenous Nature Back Into New Zealand Towns and Cities’.
